Before you start

1 Read about Ian Fleming. Look at the highlighted grammar examples.

Ian Fleming was the writer who invented James Bond. Casino Royale, published in 1953, was the first novel in which this character appeared. Fleming went on to write eleven more James Bond novels before his death in 1964.

As a young man, Fleming's ambition was to join the British Foreign Office. But he failed to get a job there, which was a great disappointment for him. Although he had never intended to be a writer, he got a job as a journalist for Reuters News Agency. Then, at the start of World War Two, Fleming became a secret information officer in the Royal Navy.

Leaving the navy in 1945, Fleming took the decision to write. But it was his work for the navy, which included several secret expeditions, that had given him the ideas for his James Bond novels.

The first James Bond novel to be made into a film was Dr No, in 1962. The film, starring Sean Connery, was a huge success.

Nobody really knows what makes the James Bond stories so successful. But now, half a century after Fleming's death, they are as popular as ever.

2 Now read the sentences and choose the correct words in italics. The highlighted grammar examples will help you.

Relative clauses

Relative clauses give us information about the subject or object of a main clause. Defining relative clauses describe exactly which (or what kind of) person or thing we mean: which writer?

Arthur Conan Doyle is the writer who invented Sherlock Holmes.

what kind of phone?

Do you have a phone which takes photos?

We introduce a relative clause with a relative pronoun:

RELATIVE PRONOUN	FOR	EXAMPLES
who	people	Mrs Lee was the woman who taught me to play the piano.
which	animals or things (but not people)	Their cat has killed the rat which was living under our house. I've got a water heater which uses solar power.
that	people, animals and things	He's the man that I spoke to. Sue's got a cat that loves coffee! It's a phone that takes photos.
whose	possession and relationships his, her, its or their	I know the woman whose husband used to be your boss. Hanna owns a horse whose coat is completely white. I'm working for a company whose head office is in Zurich.

FORMALITY CHECK Whose is quite formal. It is less formal to use with. We can also use which has for animals or things:

Hanna owns a horse with a completely white coat.

Steve's the boy with the red hair.

I work for a company which has its head office in Zurich.

⚠ We don't use what (➤ Unit 77.1) in the same way as that:

X Frank's the man what owns our local gym

✓ Frank's the man that owns our local gym.

⚠ The relative pronoun REPLACES he/him, she/her, they/them, etc:

X Karl is the teacher who he helped us. ✓ Karl is the teacher who helped us.

X I don't talk to people that I don't like them. ✓ I don't talk to people that I don't like.

Non-defining relative clauses ➤ Unit 73

2 Leaving out the relative pronoun

The pronoun (e.g. who, which, that) in a relative clause can be the subject or object of the clause:

SUBJECT	Arthur Conan Doyle was the writer who invented Sherlock Holmes. (Conan Doyle invented Sherlock Holmes.)
OBJECT	'The Hound of the Baskervilles' is a novel which he wrote in 1901. (He wrote the novel.)

We can leave out the relative pronoun when it is an OBJECT, especially in speech and informal writing:

'The Hound of the Baskervilles' is a novel he wrote in 1901.

FORMALITY CHECK We usually include the object relative pronoun in formal writing: To activate your card you must use the new PIN number which we sent by recorded delivery.

We cannot leave out the relative pronoun when it is a SUBJECT:

- X Arthur Conan Doyle was the writer invented Sherlock Holmes.
- ✓ Arthur Conan Doyle was the writer who invented Sherlock Holmes.

3 Clauses with when, where, why

We can also use when, where and why to introduce relative clauses.

- When introduces a relative clause about times, days, years, etc: There was a storm on the day when my sister got married.
- Where introduces a relative clause about places: Do you know any shops where you can get designer jeans? We can also use which/that (+ in) to talk about places: That's the hotel where we stayed. That's the hotel which/that we stayed in.
- Why introduces a relative clause about reason: That's the reason why I'm late.

We can leave out the noun before when, where and why:

That was when I lived in London. (the time when)

This is where my best friend went to school. (the building/place where)

And that's why we're late. (the reason why)

We can leave out when after day, year, time, etc. and why after reason:

There was a storm on the day my sister got married. That's the reason I'm late.

4 Prepositions in relative clauses

We sometimes form relative clauses using verbs with prepositions, such as apply for. FORMALITY CHECK The position of the preposition is different in formal and informal English:

	INFORMAL
I applied for that job.⇒	That's the job which I applied for.
I work with Steve.⇒	Steve's the man who I work with.

FORMAL
Below are the details of the job for which you applied.
It's important to get on with the people with whom* you work.

^{*} If we put a preposition before who, it changes to whom.

⚠ We don't use prepositions in clauses beginning with when or where:

I used to live in this house.

X This is the house where I used to live in.

✓ This is the house where I used to live.

1 We cannot put a preposition in front of that:

I've been looking for this book.  This is the book for that I've been looking.

This is the book that I've been looking for.

 40 4.16 Listen and check.

The detective novel

For over a hundred years detective stories have been one of the most popular forms of writing. The books that they appear in are often called 'whodunits'. In many cases the detectives in these novels are professional police officers. A typical example is Inspector Morse, the famous Oxford detective who was created by the writer Colin Dexter.

But many of these characters are private detectives who help the clients who they work for. Perhaps the best-known is Philip Marlowe – a private detective invented by the author Raymond Chandler in a novel which he wrote in 1939.

Of course, not all detectives in fiction are professionals, many are amateurs. One of the most famous of these is Miss Marple, a character that Agatha Christie invented in 1927.

In more recent years, scientists and psychologists have taken over the role of detectives in popular fiction. This is due to the increasingly important role which science plays in modern police work. One of the best-known of these 'detectives' is Dr Kay Scarpetta – the invention of American crime writer Patricia Cornwell. Cornwell introduced Scarpetta to the world in Postmortem, a book which she published in 1990.

- 3 Complete the sentences with which, where, when or why. Leave out the pronoun where possible.
 - This tastes awful. I don't know why I ordered it!
 It was raining by the time we're supposed to meet them?
 - 3 She works in a building used to be a hospital.
 - 4 Is that the reason she never answers your emails?
 - 5 This is the house my grandmother was born.
 - 6 1969 was the year human beings first landed on the moon.
 - 7 What a terrible thing to say! I don't know she's always so rude to me.
 - 8 It was a film seemed to last forever.
 - 9 Do you remember the day we met?
 - 10 There were a couple of questions were too difficult for me to answer.

4 Complete the second sentence so it means the same as the first. Sentences 4–6 are more formal English.

0	We used to go to that school.
	That's the school we used to go to
1	I told you about that woman.
	She's the woman
2	You were interested in a musical. Is it Mamma Mia?
	Is Mamma Mia the musical	?
3	We walked under that old railway bridge.
	That's the old railway bridge
4	The insurance company has already paid for those repairs.

	This is a matter has no	o control.
6	The bank has lent money to those customers.
	Those are the customers	has lent mone

5 GRAMMAR IN USE Look at the text about a TV show below and complete it with this information.

- (0) The Internet and mobile phones didn't exist in the nineteenth century.
- (1) Sherlock Holmes lives in the flat at 221B Baker Street.
- (2) Conan Doyle invented the basic plots.
- (3) Sherlock Holmes uses his powers of observation to solve crimes.
- (4) Benedict Cumberbatch has starred in many recent films and TV shows.
- (5) Dr Watson's career in the army has ended.
- (6) Martin Freeman became famous for his part in The Office.

A 21st Century Sherlock Holmes
Sherlock is a new BBC television series based on the novels of Arthur Conan Doyle, but set in present-day London. Of course, the original stories were written in the late nin eteenth century, a time (0) When the Internet and mobile phones didn Dexist.
In this new version all kinds of modern technology are used.
Although the stories have been updated to the twenty-first century, lovers of the original novels will be pleased to know that many of the familiar characters and places have been kept for the new series. For instance, the flat (1) is still 221B Baker Street.
The writers of the series have used the basic plots (2)
, but they have been made more exciting and modern. The main characters are:
Sherlock Holmes: Holmes is a brilliant detective (3)
Cumberbatch, a young actor (4)
Dr Watson: Watson, a doctor (5), is Sherlock Holmes' best friend. The part of Watson is played by Martin Freeman. He's an actor (6) in the hit comedy series The Office.

1 Non-defining relative clauses

Non-defining relative clauses do not describe exactly who or what we mean. Instead they give us extra information about the subject or object of a main clause:

Alexander Solzhenitsyn, who was awarded the Nobel Prize in 1970, wrote several novels.

If we remove the clause, the sentence still makes sense:

Alexander Solzhenitsyn wrote several novels.

Compare this with defining relative clauses:

Angela Green is the woman who lives next door.

Angela Green is the woman. [which woman?]

We don't use that or what in non-defining relative clauses:

X The painting, that is now restored, can be seen in the National Gallery.

✓ The painting, which is now restored, can be seen in the National Gallery.

Because non-defining relative clauses do not identify the subject in the main clause, there is a difference in meaning:

The passengers who were injured in the crash were taken to hospital. DEFINING (Only the injured passengers were taken to hospital. We know that some were

NON-DEFINING The passengers, who were injured in the crash, were taken to hospital.

(All the passengers were taken to hospital. We know that they were all injured.)

2 Punctuation and use of prepositions

Unlike defining relative clauses, non-defining relative clauses are separated from the rest of the sentence by commas. We usually put the clause immediately after the subject it refers to:

 \triangle X The author of the novel lives in Edinburgh, which you can buy for $\dot{\gamma}20$.

✓ The author of the novel, which you can buy for 120, lives in Edinburgh.

We use prepositions in non-defining relative clauses in the same way as in defining relative clauses (> Unit 72.4):

Sue recently won a prize, which she never stops talking about.

That house, which we used to live in, has been sold.

Pronunciation > 1.31

3 Comment clauses with which

We can use a non-defining relative clause, usually at the end of the sentence, to say something about the whole of the main clause:

The army team was unable to make the bomb safe, which meant everyone had to leave the area. Solzhenitsyn wrote his books while he was still a prisoner, which was very brave.

⚠ We use which, NOT who, whose, that or it, to introduce a comment clause. We put a comma before which:

X Solzhenitsyn wrote his books while he was still a prisoner, who was very brave.

✓ Solzhenitsyn wrote his books while he was still a prisoner, which was very brave.

1 Choose the correct meaning, A or B.

- 0 Emma's sister, who isn't married, lives in New York. A Emma has several sisters. BEmma only has one sister.
- 1 This building is part of the Riverside development, which has just won a design award. A The building has won an award. B The Riverside development has won an award.
- 2 We stayed at the first hotel we saw which had a swimming pool. A We only looked at one hotel. B We looked at other hotels without pools.
- 3 I chose the grey suit, which cost $100. A The colour was more important. B The price was more important.
- 4 Two students who took the exam passed with distinction.
 A More than two students took the exam. B Only two students took the exam.

2 Rewrite the sentences, using non-defining relative dauses.

- 0 I went to university in Cambridge. Cambridge is a beautiful city.
 I went to university in Cambridge, which is a beautiful city.
- 1 Humaniqueness is the first book that Glauco Ortolano has written in English. Ortolano is Brazilian.
- 2 Harlitt's chocolate factory has closed down. It used to employ over a thousand people.
- 3 You can't smoke in restaurants any more. I'm pleased about that.
- 4 They've closed down our local library. This is really annoying.
- 5 The course starts on Monday 12th January. The course lasts ten weeks.
- 6 The new company president will be Sandra Jackson. Sandra Jackson's period as creative director was very successful.

The nineteenth century, that was the golden age of Russian literature produced the world-famous novelists Leo Tolstoy and Fyodor Dostoevsky, the poet Alexander Pushkin and the playwright Anton Chekhov. Tolstoy's novel War and Peace what was written in 1869 is often considered to be the greatest novel of the nineteenth century.

Russian literature continued to flourish in the twentieth century. Internationally, the two Russian novelists who were most successful were Boris Pasternak and Vladimir Nabokov.

Nabokov, that spent much of his life in the United States also wrote novels in English.

Pasternak was the author of Dr Zhivago that was made into a hugely successful film in 1965.

He was awarded the Nobel Prize in 1958 but refused to accept it.

74 Clauses after the noun

Robinson Crusoe is a novel based on the true story of a Scottish pirate Alexander Selkirk.

Reduced relative clauses

We often make relative clauses shorter, like this:

'Robinson Crusoe' is a novel which is based on the true story of Alexander Selkirk.

→ 'Robinson Crusoe' is a novel based on the true story of Alexander Selkirk.

It's about a man who lives on a deserted island.

- → It's about a man living on a deserted island.
- If the verb in the original relative clause is active, we use the -ing form: It's a shop that sells designer jeans. \Rightarrow It's a shop selling designer jeans.
- If the verb is passive we use the -ed form: It's a novel which is based on a true story. → It's a novel based on a true story.
- We can only make clauses shorter when the noun we are describing is the same as the subject of the relative clause, NOT if it is different:

noun we are describing # subject of relative clause

This is a photo of the hotel that we stay in every year.

X This is a photo of the hotel staying in every year.

More on other participle clauses > Unit 75

 \triangle We only use the -ing form if the action is happening now or is continuing. We cannot use it for single actions in the past:

That was the customer who phoned yesterday. (single completed action)

X That was the customer phoning yesterday.

We don't use -ing forms with state verbs (➤ Unit 29.3/4):

X He's the man owning the factory. ✓ He's the man who owns the factory.

2 Infinitive clauses

We often replace a relative clause with an infinitive clause after a superlative, after the first, the second, etc., or after one, next, last, few and only (> Unit 76.2):

Yuri Gagarin was the first man that went into space.

→ Yuri Gagarin was the first man to go into space.

She was the only one who helped me. - She was the only one to help me.

3 Using prepositions instead of relative clauses

We often shorten sentences with the help of prepositions:

relative pronoun + have → with:

This queue is for passengers who have EU passports.

→ This queue is for passengers with EU passports.

Is there a restaurant that has a vegetarian menu near here?

- → Is there a restaurant with a vegetarian menu near here?
- relative pronoun + be + preposition \Rightarrow in/at/on, etc:

I like the painting which is on the bedroom wall. \rightarrow I like the painting on the bedroom wall. What are those plants that are in your garden? → What are those plants in your garden?

75 Participle clauses

Written in 1961, Catch-22 is a novel about a young American soldier, John Yossarian. In the middle of World War Two he is sent to fight in Italy, leaving his friends and family behind.

Participle clauses

Participle clauses give more information about a noun. We use the -ed or -ing form of the verb. Participle clauses don't have a subject because their subject is the noun/pronoun in the main clause:

participle clause subject

Written in 1961, 'Catch-22' is a novel about a young American soldier, John Yossarian.

subject participle clause

In the middle of World War Two, he is sent to fight in Italy, leaving his friends and family behind.

FORMALITY CHECK In written English we often put participle clauses in front of the main clause. We use a comma to separate the two clauses.

Participle clauses are common in written English because they let us give a lot of information in a single sentence.

2 Participle clauses of reason, result, time, etc.

	FULL CLAUSE	PARTICIPLE CLAUSE
reason	Because he's a student he can get a discount on rail travel.	Being a student, he can get a discount on rail travel.
result	A snowstorm covered the motorway. The result was that dozens of drivers were trapped in their cars.	A snowstorm covered the motorway, trapping dozens of drivers in their cars.
condition	If you give it enough water and sunlight, the plant will grow to three metres.	Given enough water and sunlight, the plant will grow to three metres.
time/ sequence	As I walked into the room I noticed the flowers by the window.	Walking into the room, I noticed the flowers by the window.

There is also a perfect form, having + past participle (> Unit 64.1), which we can use to talk about an action that happened earlier:

Having paid the entrance fee, we walked into the museum.

(= After we had paid the entrance fee, we walked into the museum.)

3 Forms for active and passive meanings

In participle clauses the -ing form has an active meaning:

The bank manager opened the safe and noticed something strange inside. (active verb)

→ Opening the safe, the bank manager noticed something strange inside.

The -ed form has a passive meaning:

The flood victim stood on the roof. He was trapped by the rising water. (passive verb)

→ The flood victim stood on the roof, trapped by the rising water.

(0) Barn in Scotland in 1676, Selkirk was the son of a shoemaker, and very different from the character he inspired in the novel Robinson Crusoe. As a teenager he was very badly behaved. (1) for causing trouble in 1695, he was ordered to appear in court, but he ran away to sea, (2) the crew of the pirate ship, Cinque Ports. He was a skilled sailor and was quickly promoted.
(3) sailing master in 1703, Selkirk soon started arguing with Thomas Stradling, the ship's captain.
In October 1704, (4) to collect fresh food and water for his ship, Captain Stradling decided to stop at one of the deserted islands of Juan Fernandez. (5) an old ship, the Cinque Ports also needed repairs. Selkirk wanted the crew to repair the ship, but the captain refused, and, (6) by Selkirk's continued demands, sailed away without him.
(7) alone on the island for more than four years, Selkirk had to find ways to stay alive. Fortunately, he was able to make his own clothes and tools, (8) the skills he had learnt from his father.

76 Infinitive clauses

And Then There Were None was the first book by Agatha Christie to sell more than 100 million copies. It is one of the few books not to feature her famous characters Hercule Poirot or Miss Marple.

1 Infinitive clauses (infinitive + to)

We often use infinitive clauses after the verb be: As a child, my ambition was to study medicine. My ambition is to become a vet. There are active and passive forms of the infinitive:

	ACTIVE INFINITIVE	PASSIVE INFINITIVE
simple*	The most important thing is to tell the truth.	I hate to be told lies.

^{*} There is a perfect form to have told and a continuous form to be telling (> Unit 65.2).

To make the negative form we put not in front of the infinitive: It is one of the few books not to feature her famous characters Hercule Poirot or Miss Marple. President Solano was the only head of state not to be invited to the conference.

We don't usually include a subject in an infinitive clause:

X It is important you to tell the truth. ✓ It is important to tell the truth.

But if the subject of the infinitive clause is different from the subject of the sentence, we can use for + subject + infinitive with to:

I think it's important for politicians to tell the truth. My aim is for my children to be happy.

NATURAL ENGLISH There are some well-known expressions with infinitive clauses that we use to make a comment about something we are saying:

I really don't like him, to be honest. To tell the truth, the show was disappointing.

Infinitives which follow certain verbs, e.g. I refuse to leave > Unit 65

2 Infinitives after superlatives, adjectives, etc.

We often use infinitive clauses to replace relative clauses after a superlative, after the first, the second, etc. or after one, next, last, few and only:

It was the first book by Agatha Christie which sold more than 100 million copies.

→ It was the □rst book by Agatha Christie to sell more than 100 million copies.

We also use infinitives after adjectives which describe people's feelings and opinions: We're delighted to be here. I'm happy for them to join the class.

3 Infinitive of purpose

We can use an infinitive clause to describe the purpose or reason for an action: Carlos went to college to study law. I took a pill to get rid of my headache.

 \triangle We don't use for + infinitive of purpose:

X He went to the corner for to get a taxi. ✓ He went to the corner to get a taxi.

FORMALITY CHECK In more formal English we can also use in order to or so as to: We moved to Brighton in order to be nearer our grandchildren.

Please move to the front so as to allow more room for the late arrivals.

We can put the infinitive clause before the main clause for instructions:

To make a call, press the green button. To in Date the life jacket, pull on the red cord.

- ANGELA That's OK. I'd be happy her to join us.

77 Other noun structures

The Grapes of Wrath, by John Steinbeck, is a fascinating book. It describes what life was like for poor American farmers in the 1930s.

1 Wh- clauses

Wh- clauses can express the same as a noun or noun phrase, but we tend to use them more in informal English.

NOUN PHRASE	Wh- CLAUSE
I don't agree with their decision. Have you been to our house? They told us about the designer. I don't understand this method.	→ I don't agree with what they decided. → Have you been to where we live? → They told us about who designed it. → I don't understand how you do it.

- Wh- clauses are not the same as relative clauses:
 - I don't agree with their decision. (noun phrase)
 - → I don't agree with what they decided. (wh-clause)
 - → I don't agree with the decision that they made. (relative clause)
- The wh- clause acts like a noun, so it can be the subject or object of a verb:

What he did made us very angry. (= His actions made us angry.)

It describes what life was like for poor farmers in the 1930s.

(= It describes poor farmers' living conditions.)

What usually means 'the thing(s) that':

What we do is more important than what we know.

(= The things we do are more important than the things we know.)

I don't know much about art, but I know what I like. (= I know the things that I like.)

⚠ We don't include the noun in a clause beginning with what:

X I don't agree with the decision what they decided. ✓ I don't agree with what they decided.

Relative clauses with when, where and why > Unit 72.3

2 Comparison clauses with nouns

We usually make comparisons using adjectives and adverbs (> Units 21, 22).

But we can also compare nouns:

She's richer than me. -> She's got more money than me.

Their house is bigger than ours. → Their house has more space than ours.

Nowadays it doesn't take as long to get there. → Nowadays it takes less time to get there.

We can also make superlative forms using the most/the least + noun:

Of all our staff, Jackie had the fewest complaints.

Sally has the least money, so we should let her have the cheapest ticket.

More on more/less and the most/the least > Unit 12.3 less > Units 21 and 25

The Embarrassment of Riches by Simon Schama

This is a book about Holland in the seventeenth century, the golden age of Dutch history Simon Schama, a professor of history at Columbia University, uses this book to tell us about (0) What he thinks is a key moment in European history athe birth of the 1rst modern society. The book explains (1) Holland built the world's □rst maritime empire and created a tolerant society which has lasted until the present day. He describes the people that created this society: (2) they were and (3) they achieved it. He is particularly strong on cultural history. He has clearly done (4) _____ research than most historians because his knowledge of Dutch art is enormous In fact, (5) we know about most Dutch artists is fairly limited, but Schama uses the evidence very well. He tells us (6) the artists came from and (7) they managed to create such amazing works of art. But he doesn't ignore the ordinary people of that time; he describes (8) life was like for people at all levels of

This is a big book and has

(9) facts and \(\subseteq\text{gures}\) than most history books. But,
